BEFORE STAGE ONE

The world test

A living world is not a pile of lore. It contains distinct people, work with consequences, systems that remember, and doors a visitor can enter.

EVERY LINE IS A DEPENDENCY · MOVE ONE AND CHECK THE REST

THE EXPANSION THE WORKBOOK PERFORMS ON YOUR OWN IDEA

Your one idea

STAGE 1 OF 10

The Spark

Write the idea in one sentence.

Why must this world exist?

What feeling should a visitor carry out?

STAGE 2 OF 10

The Rule

Name one rule that makes this world different.

Who benefits and who pays?

What breaks when somebody refuses it?

STAGE 3 OF 10

The Place

Name the first place people can picture.

What work happens there?

Which sensory detail shows who has power?

STAGE 4 OF 10

The People

Create three people who want different outcomes.

Give each a competence, protection, refusal, contradiction, and hope.

Write three lines only each would say.

STAGE 5 OF 10

The Work

What keeps the place alive daily?

Who performs invisible labor?

What tool, ritual, or shortcut shows the culture?

STAGE 6 OF 10

The Friction

What ordinary problem reveals character?

What does each person misunderstand?

Which choice has a consequence?

STAGE 7 OF 10

The Memory

What happened before page one?

Who remembers it differently?

What object or place carries the memory?

STAGE 8 OF 10

The System

Map people, places, work, rules, resources, consequence, and repair.

Where does information travel?

What changes elsewhere when one part moves?

STAGE 9 OF 10

The First Story

Begin with a person doing work.

Let a specific problem interrupt routine.

End with a changed relationship or decision.

STAGE 10 OF 10

The Living Shelf

Choose the first form: story, card, recipe, audio scene, map, or activity.

Define artifact, price, rights, delivery, and support.

Name the next product only after the first is finished.

STAGE 10 OUTPUT

Release gate

Tick every line before you call the first product finished. An unticked line is the next piece of work, not an opinion.

☐ Finished artifact	☐ Price visible
☐ Rights checked	☐ Support boundary visible
☐ Customer can receive it	☐ Claims are truthful
☐ Re-access works	☐ Next revision has an owner

IF ONE BOX WILL NOT TICK

Do not widen the product to avoid it. Name the box, name the owner, and finish that one thing. The shelf stays honest that way.

NEXT ACTION

Name the one thing you will finish first

Not the world. Not the series. The first artifact a person could actually receive.

Who owns it, and by when?
